More than just a competition

For 32 years, Courchevel's Olympic ski jumps have been hosting the only French round of the Ski Jumping World Cup every year. More than just a competition, the Courchevel stage has established itself as a sporting institution since it was first held in 1991, with the greatest champions coming out on top.

On men's side

On ladies' side

Among other names, they include many Olympic greats such as Japan's Masahiko Harada, the Swiss Simon Amman, the Austrian Thomas Morgenstern or Poland's Kamil Stoch, who currently holds the ski jumping record with a jump of 137 m... a joint record shared with Michael Hayboeck and Daniel Tschofening.

In the women's category, Japanese prodigy Sara Takanashi has already triumphed on four occasions. While the 2022 Beijing Olympic champion, Slovenia's Ursa Bogataj, won twice, just like her countrywoman Nika Kriznar. Nika achieved the double last summer in Courchevel and holds the women's ski jumping record with a jump of 133 m.

On the French side

We'll be keeping an eye on Valentin Foubert, the local jumper who scored his first World Cup points last winter. Exceeded the 200 m mark in the ski flying discipline with a leap of over 204.5 m, he became the eleventh Frenchman in history to achieve such a feat.

On the women's side, the momentum is even stronger. France's number one ski jumper Joséphine Pagnier who claimed two World Cup victories last winter, made a remarkable accomplishment. To witness such a feat on the ladies' side, we must go back 10 years ago with Coline Mattel, and 28 years on the men's side with Nicolas Dessum, the current coach of the French national men's team.

This exclusive annual international event in France attracts a huge crowd of spectators who come to admire the world's elite in the discipline, alongside the world's best aerobatics performers, in the skies of Courchevel.

This summer, audiences of all ages will once again be able to marvel at the solo and patrol aerobatics performed by Adrenalin' Flights over the two days of competition.

Aviation fans can look forward to demonstrations by the 'Extra Aircraft AE300 and AE330' and the legendary Yakovlev Yak-11 used by the Soviet Air Force between 1947 and the 1960s.

The success of the Courchevel Grand Prix also stems from its incomparable atmosphere. Events and activities are scheduled throughout the two days of competition, including children's activities and the chance to tackle the Eclipse, the downhill track of the Courchevel Méribel 2023 World Ski Championships, on a virtual reality simulator.

And of course, our Alpine skiing champion, Alexis Pinturault, will be there on Wednesday 14 August. The two-day competition will end with a musical extravaganza featuring concerts and fireworks display on 14th August.
